Agency Overview

Background

The Office of Colorado’s Child Protection Ombudsman (Office) was established in June 2010, under Senate Bill 10-171. This legislation provided that the Office would operate as a program through a contract with a local non-profit agency, issued and managed by the Colorado Department of Human Services (CDHS).

The original legislation was passed in response to the highly publicized deaths of 12 children who were known to the child welfare system within five years of dying from abuse. The Office was created to respond to the public outcry concerning the children’s deaths and the belief that the Colorado child protection system required a greater degree of oversight, accountability and transparency to prevent such tragedies in the future.

From 2011 through 2015, the Office was housed by the nonprofit, the National Association of Counsel for Children, and was supervised by the CDHS. From the beginning, the Office has responded to citizen complaints about the sufficiency of the child protection system and evaluated whether it is performing in an optimal way to keep children safe. Throughout this time, the Office has issued approximately 164 recommendations and published four annual reports. Through these recommendations, the Office has been instrumental in improving service delivery to children and families across Colorado. The Office has also had a presence at the state Capitol during the past four years and has provided expert consultation and testimony related to several bills.

Since its inception, the Office has had two prior ombudsmen. Each ombudsman preceding the current appointee has continued to move the Office forward in a positive direction and played a significant role in the Office obtaining independence.

On June 2, 2015, Senate Bill 15-204, Concerning the Independent Functioning of the Office of the Child Protection Ombudsman, was signed into law. This legislation transformed the original “program” located under the CDHS into a distinct, independent state office. The new, independent Office opened in January 2016.

The Ombudsman concept, which dates back hundreds of years, is designed to provide citizens with an independent, unbiased and trusted intermediary between the public and an entity. In this case, the entity is the child protection system. Ombudsmen are guided by standards set by organizations such as the United States Ombudsman Association and the American Bar Association. Using those standards, the Office creates an accountability mechanism by independently gathering information, investigating complaints and providing recommendations to child protection agencies. Compliance with those recommendations, or lack thereof, is published annually to citizens and stakeholders.

Additionally, the legislature created the first ever Child Protection Ombudsman Board in 2015. The board is the first of its kind in the nation. By law, this board is required to oversee the Ombudsman’s performance as well as serve as an advisory body on strategic direction and outreach. It will be necessary for the Board to develop sound governance and operating policies in order to carry out its statutory mandates.

Mission

The mission of the Office is to bring accountability and transparency to the child protection system and promote better outcomes for children and families. The Office fields and reviews complaints regarding child protection agencies, defined in C.R.S. 19-3.3-103 as, “any public agency or any provider that receives public moneys that may adversely affect the safety, permanency, or well-being of the child.” Those agencies include – but are not limited to – CDHS, law enforcement, the Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment (CDPHE), educators, day care providers, medical professionals and treatment providers. The Office serves the children of Colorado by driving policy reform and improving best practices within the child protection system.

Vision

Protecting children today and creating a stronger child protection system for the future.

Mandate

The Office was established pursuant to C.R.S. 19.3.3-101. Some of the Office’s primary duties include:

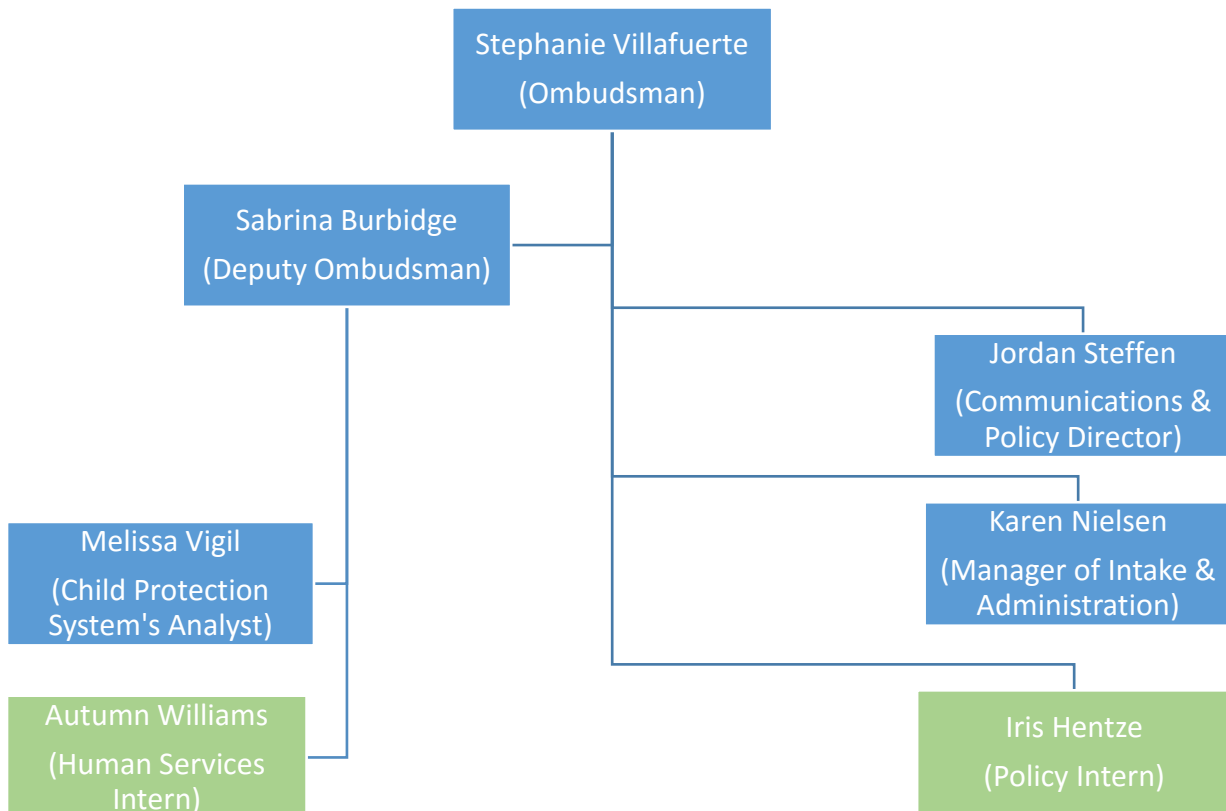

- Fielding and reviewing citizen and stakeholders’ complaints regarding Colorado’s child protection system;
- Make recommendations for better practice and systemic change;
- Maintain a highly visible, statewide grievance process;
- Treat all complaints as confidential;
- Use information gained from reviews and investigations to educate and advise citizens, the legislature and the Governor on key child protection issues, policies and improvements.

Child Protection Ombudsman Organizational Chart

The Office is currently comprised of four full-time employees: The Ombudsman, Deputy Ombudsman Child Protection System's Analyst and Manager of Intake and Administration. The position of Communications and Policy Director is currently a part-time position. The Office also has two unpaid internships.

Major Functions of the Agency

The Child Protection Ombudsman is charged with fielding and reviewing complaints regarding Colorado’s child protection system and making recommendations for practice improvements or systemic change.

Since becoming independent, the Office has relocated and is now housed in the Colorado Judicial Branch. The Colorado legislature allocated money to the judicial department for the cost of building and furnishing a new space for the Office as well as providing ongoing accounting, budget and human resource assistance.

However, the 2015 legislation did not provide the Office additional funding to carry out several of its new functions. Specifically, the Office was not provided funding for necessary legal services or funds to support the expense of a new board. No funding was provided for the increased expenses associated with moving the Office to a new location.

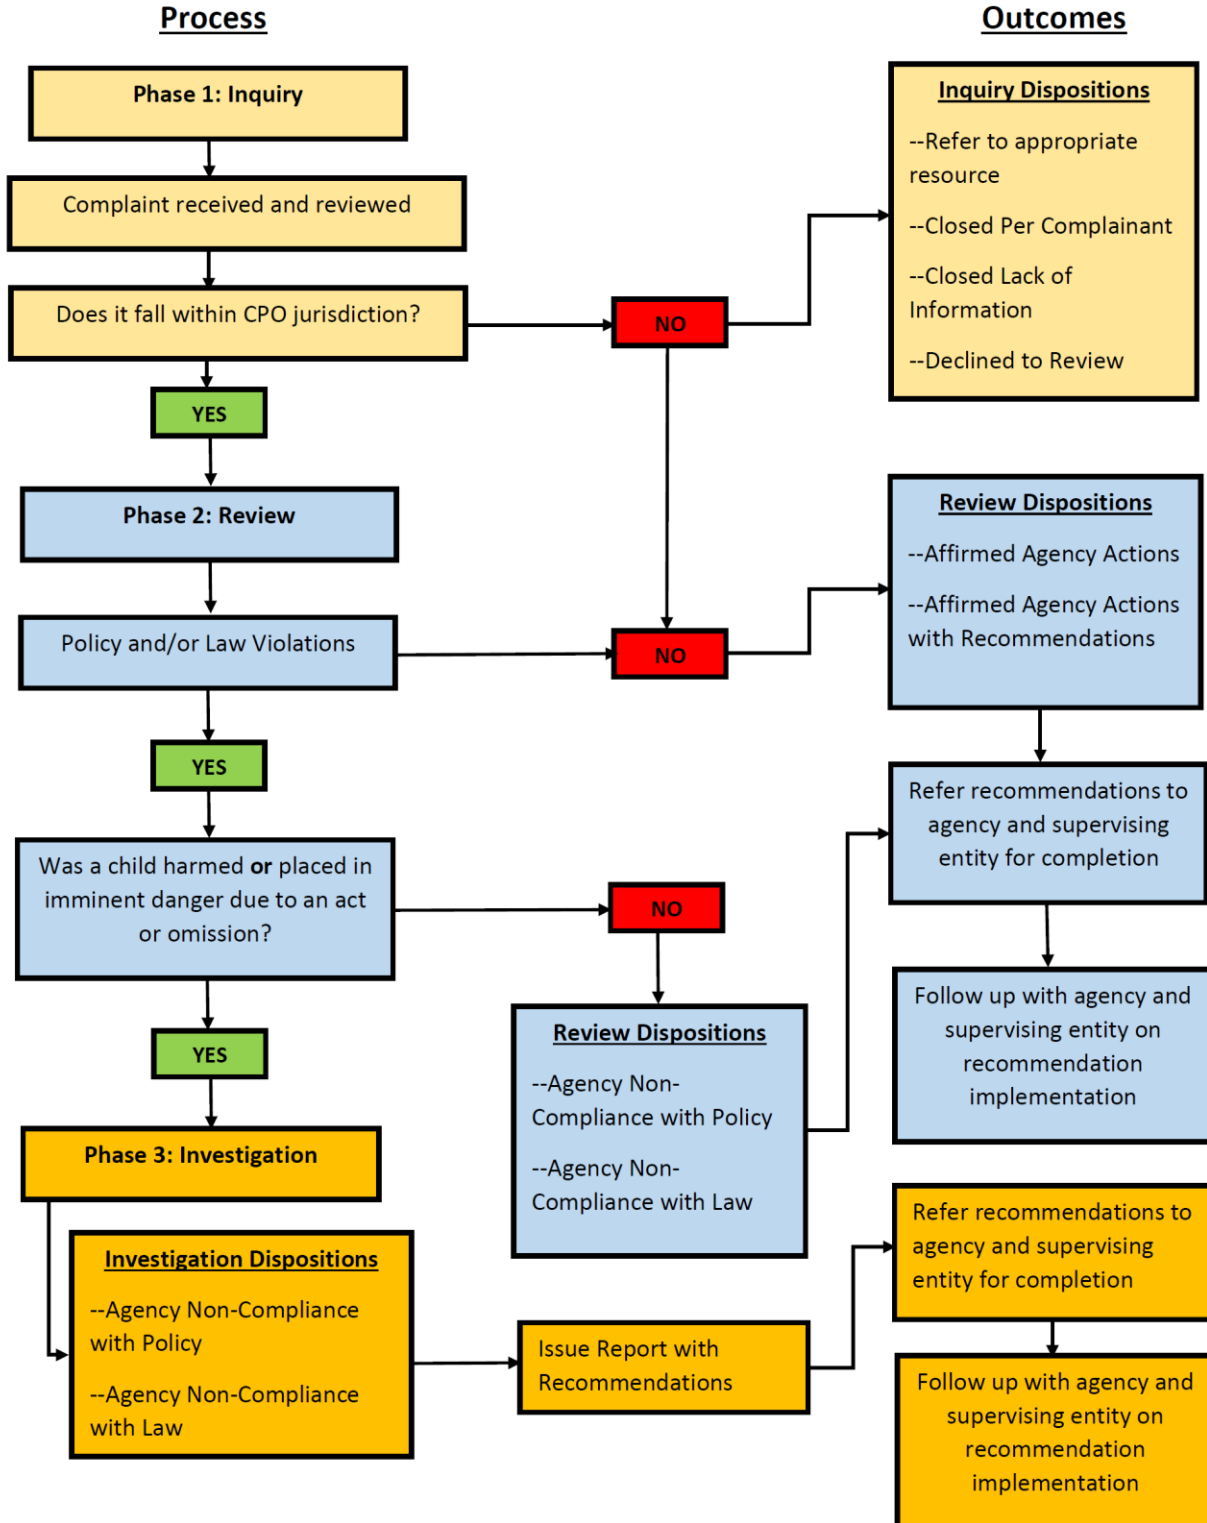

Despite those budget shortages, the Office was uninterrupted in providing services to the public. In the spring of 2016, the Joint Budget Committee (JBC) provided the necessary funds for staff, Board and legal shortages. The Office’s current budget for fiscal year 2016-2017 is $591,646. Since, January 2016, the Office fielded at least 295 contacts and opened 150 reviews.

Also in the past eight months, the Office has successfully completed 16 goals in four key areas – infrastructure, financial, human resources and outreach – to establish the basic functions of an independent government agency. The Office continues to move forward in providing services to children and families and connecting with key stakeholders. Again, these tasks were completed while maintaining the continuity of the Office’s day-to-day business. The completed goals include:

INFRASTRUCTURE <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Maintained seamless communication with the public through acquiring phones, computers and necessary software • Coordinated with the Judicial Department to construct permanent office space in the Ralph L. Carr Colorado Judicial Center • Filled vacancies on the 12-member board • Developed an internship program • Completed a rebranding initiative for the Office • Organized and held a staff development retreat • Held a Board retreat and six board meetings FINANCIAL <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Prepared and submitted supplemental budget request • Increased the operating budget by 19 percent HUMAN RESOURCES <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Filled the full-time position of Child Protection System Analyst and the part-time position of Policy and Communications Director • Drafted personnel rules 	OUTREACH <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Completed site visits to the Indiana Department of Child Services Ombudsman Bureau in Indianapolis and the Office of the Family and Children’s Ombudsman in Tukwila, Washington to help design smart and effective initiatives and policies in Colorado • Delivered informational sessions to the Colorado State Foster Parent Association, the Colorado Human Services Directors Association and the Colorado Juvenile District Court Judges • Initiated outreach strategies through collecting surveys on public awareness with judicial officers and the Foster Parent Association • Maintained a presence on several stakeholder committees and meetings including monthly meetings with the CDHS, serving on the Child Fatality Review Team and the CDPHE’s Child Fatality Prevention System State Review Team • Information about the Office was added to the Rights and Remedies form distributed to parents who are court involved in the child welfare system

Colorado's Child Protection Ombudsman Process Flow Chart

Each contact the Office receives is evaluated and progresses through various phases.

CPO Goals, Strategies and Performance Measures

Overview

The Office is charged with “Receiving the public’s complaints concerning child protection services by or on behalf of a child regarding action, inaction, or decision of any public agency or any provider that receives public moneys that adversely affect the safety, permanency, or well-being of a child,” C.R.S. 19-3.3-103. Under this law, the Office must create and maintain a statewide presence over a multitude of public agencies responsible for child safety. The Office is statutorily required to review individual complaints, investigate allegations of system-wide failures and issue recommendations for the child protection system.

Colorado’s newest Child Protection Ombudsman was appointed in December 2015 by the Ombudsman Board and took office in January 2016. As an essential process of opening a new office, the Ombudsman completed an extensive assessment of Office operations. After six months of evaluation, the Ombudsman found that there are areas in need of vast improvement in order to come into, and remain in, compliance with the duties and statutory responsibilities of the Office.

The results showed that before becoming independent, the Office was not fully satisfying its statutory mandates. A review of the first four years of internal data showed that the Office visited less than a quarter of counties in the state, failed to effectively reach stakeholder groups responsible for child protection – including doctors, educators, Guardians ad Litem and law enforcement – and lacks the capacity to conduct necessary systemic investigations.

The Office has also analyzed its total budget allocation for Fiscal Year 2016-2017 and designed strategic policy initiatives that will efficiently and effectively utilize available funds. Assessments of ongoing financial needs have also been launched to continue expanding services to citizens.

The completed analysis by the Ombudsman revealed areas where the Office needs to improve and helped shape the most efficient and impactful strategies to do so. Using these strategies, and aligning the Office’s priorities with statutory mandates, the Office has created four strategic policy initiatives and the steps needed to complete these goals. The Office’s goals, strategies and performance measures are listed below.

Goal One: Establish an efficient office to ensure seamless delivery of services to the public.

When the Office relocated to the judicial center in January 2016, it initially lacked a permanent office space, as well as the necessary physical infrastructure, including phones, copiers and IT services. Thus, the first priority of the Office is to set up the necessary physical infrastructure to ensure the continuity and quality of business operations. This process is ongoing. Also, as a new independent state agency, the Office is developing a number of its own operations systems.

STRATEGY ONE: Build physical infrastructure of the Office

Goal Three: Institute outreach and communication plans to educate and advise the public and stakeholders on trends and recommendations to improve the child protection system.

A communications strategy is required to address the Office’s statutory duty to educate and conduct statewide outreach to stakeholder groups. As an independent office, it is critical that the Office develop communications strategies to be accessible and efficient for the public. The authorizing legislation for the Office mandates that it act as a “key advisor concerning issues relating to child safety and protection.” A long-term public policy plan will ensure that the Office fulfills its responsibility to make advisory recommendations to child protection agencies, county commissioners, the Governor and the General Assembly.

Goal Four: Increase staff to meet the growing demand for services.

An increasing demand for services is taking away from outreach opportunities and impacting the Office’s ability to pursue other Ombudsman mandates. When the Office was originally established, it was anticipated that it would receive approximately 156 contacts per year.¹ The funding for the Office, and allocation of full-time employees, was based on this estimate. The Office logged 135 calls in its first year, 297 in its second, 514 in its third year and 580 in its fourth year. The number of calls the Office received increase 330 percent in its fourth year compared to its first. The fiscal note, as well as the number of staff, remained constant throughout the first four years of operation.

The Office will require additional resources to continue delivering quality work and proactively improve the child protection system, as it is statutorily required to do. This includes additional outreach to the public and proactive reviews and investigations of areas the Office has yet to sufficiently address. Those areas include: foster families and children, adoptive families and children and practices at the Department of Youth Corrections. Additional staffing is key in positioning the Office to meet these mandates.

STRATEGY ONE: Analyze the Office’s needs to meet the demand for outreach and education and comply with statutory mandates

Performance Measure – Assess any additional funding that may be needed to bolster the part-time position of Communications and Policy Director.

Performance Measure – Analyze how additional funding may be used to create a second full-time investigator position.
